Hospice Austin
Your comfort. Our calling.

Thank you for downloading this packet - we hope you and your loved ones find it useful.

As the first hospice in Central Texas, Hospice Austin was established in 1979 to ease the physical, emotional and spiritual pain of any person in our community facing the final months of a serious illness. Patients receive care in their own homes, at Hospice Austin's Christopher House, or in assisted living or nursing facilities. Hospice Austin is a nonprofit organization; our resources go back into services to benefit our patients and their families, not to investors. No one who needs our services is ever turned away because of complexity of disease, cost of care, or inability to pay.

As a leader in end-of-life care, Hospice Austin recognizes the need to be prepared before an illness begins. Please use this document as a tool to help you provide basic information to your loved ones about your assets, liabilities and personal wishes.

None of the information is new or unusual, but all of the information will be helpful to you and your family at a time when you need the most help and support.

Please keep this document in a safe place; you may want to give a copy to a respected family member or the person you've appointed to be executor of your will.

If you would like information about Advance Directives such as Texas Medical Power of Attorney or Living Wills, please call us at (512) 342-4700 or visit our website, www.HospiceAustin.org/AdvanceDirectives.

Advanced directives _____

In the event of my incapacity, I have appointed the following persons to act on my behalf if I become disabled:

Power of Attorney over my assets

Name	Contact #
1st _____	_____
2nd _____	_____

Power of Attorney for medical decisions

Name	Contact #
1st _____	_____
2nd _____	_____

Guardian over my property

After-Death Checklist for Survivors

The time immediately following the death of a loved one can be overwhelming, with grief and bereavement with a seemingly endless number of tasks. The immediate days following the death will be focused on the funeral or memorial service arrangements. Soon after, however, various financial and legal issues must be addressed. Many people find that having a checklist of decisions to be made and tasks to be done when a death occurs helps them to be better organized and, thus, reduces some of the anxiety associated with an emotional time. We hope you find this checklist helpful.

- ◆ Decide who will do what tasks
- ◆ Contact those who will take on responsibilities
- ◆ Have someone write down every decision made and every action taken

Gather together your loved one's personal information:

Full legal name
Legal residence
Length of time at current address Date of birth
Place of birth
Citizenship
Health insurance information
Social Security Number
Occupation
Employment or business history
Marital history
Spouse's full name
Father's name and birthplace
Mother's name and birthplace
Next of kin, addresses, and relationship
Executor's name and contact information
Attorney's name and contact information
Doctor's name and contact information

Information that can be included in your loved one's obituary:

High school attended
University attended
Military record
Family history
Work or professional history
Religious activities and affiliations
Civic activities
Special awards and accomplishments
Hobbies, activities and interests
Charities and other special requests

People to contact before funeral:

Relatives and friends
Religious groups
Professional groups
Unions
Civic groups

Funeral/memorial period:

Follow directives if body or organ donation was planned.

Select a funeral home, if not already arranged for.

Discuss costs with funeral director with the assistance of a family member or friend. Select options within your budget. Order pre-printed "thank you" cards.

Decide on cremation or burial, if not already determined.

Make arrangements for the service, in consultation with your minister, priest, or rabbi.

Write an obituary and send to local newspapers. Include information about memorial gifts if appropriate. A family member or friend can help you follow guidelines supplied by your local newspapers. The funeral home will also assist if requested.

Notify friends, relatives and others.

Order at least 15 copies of the death certificate from the funeral director or health dept.

Set up a system to record and later acknowledge cards, phone calls, food, and other gifts.

Begin to organize information:

Start a filing system for quick and easy retrieval. For example, use colored manila folders. Possible file headings include: bank correspondence, bills, business-related, credit card statements, employer correspondence, estate documents, household, income tax-related, investments, life insurance, other assets, personal documents, etc.

Create a calendar with important “due dates.”

Keep a log of actions taken and pertinent notes. Include the date and contact person if someone else was involved. (If you don’t create a list, you’re likely to forget the dozens of contacts you’ll make and things you have done.)

Work with an attorney and tax preparer:

Gather significant documents, including your spouse’s will and trust if applicable.

If you have not previously worked with a tax preparation professional, inquire about which documents to keep and about your pertinent tax issues for the current year.

Ask friends or professional advisor for names of a lawyer who does estate work, if you don’t have an attorney already. This individual will guide you during the probate process.

If you’re the executor, process and manage the estate settlement process with the guidance of your professional advisors. (Also see section on the next page — estate settlement.)

Collect benefits:

Locate birth certificate, Social Security number, marriage license, military discharge papers, financial account statements and company benefits brochure you may need to collect certain benefits. Keep these papers readily available in your organizational folders.

File a benefits claim form through the nearest Social Security office or go online at www.ssa.gov if you qualify for benefits. Call 1-800-772-1213 and ask for Publication No. 05-10084: Social Security Survivor Benefits. If your spouse paid into the Social Security system for at least 40 quarters (10 years) and was eligible to receive Social Security, you will receive a lump-sum death benefit of $255. Unmarried children under age 18 (or older if attending high school or if disabled) are eligible for benefits, and if you are caring for these children you may qualify for survivor benefits. You can apply for Social Security retirement benefits as early as age 60 if you are a widow with limited employment income (or in some cases, even earlier).

Contact your life insurance agent to start collecting benefits. You may have various payment options. Be certain you understand your choices before selecting the payout method. Check the following sources for other life insurance: your spouse's employer or former employers; insurance through your mortgage company, credit cards or certain other loans; and professional association or unions.

Collect veteran's benefits if you qualify. Contact the Department of Veteran Affairs, if your spouse served in the military. You and children of active-duty or retired military may be eligible for certain benefits, such as medical care, commissary exchange, and veterans' mortgage life insurance. For more information on benefits and procedures, go to www.va.gov or visit a local VA office. Defense Department Form 214, if your loved one was in the military. If you cannot find the original, you may request a copy by calling 800-318-5298 or by going to the National Archives website and following the link for veterans and their families.

Roll over your spouse's IRAs into your own. Or, if you are less than 59½ years old and need extra income, consider making his account a beneficiary IRA. This will minimize income tax you'll pay on early distributions. (Other exceptions may exist. Consult your tax professional or financial planner before making choices.)

Contact the Human Resources Department of your late spouse's employer, if he was employed at the time of death. Staff can assist you with unpaid salary, vacation pay, sick pay, medical-care flex or reimbursement account, bonuses and commissions, life insurance, pension benefits, access to qualified retirement accounts, stock options, and any other benefits due. If the death was because of an accident on the job, there may be accidental death benefits.

Take a pension from your spouse's qualified retirement plan or roll over money into your IRA, depending on your options. Review his employer's retirement plan document.

Contact the financial aid office, if you have a child in college. Your son or daughter may be eligible for special assistance or increased financial aid.

Review cash flow and liquidity needs:

Be certain you have sufficient cash flow during this transition period. Prepare a statement listing where money will come from and where it needs to go in the coming months. Include a list of regular periodic bills.

Tap certain investments that may be available at face value without penalty, as they carry an “estate feature.” (For example, certificates of deposit with a “death put” or a variable annuity with a death benefit greater than its current market value.)

Adjust health insurance and other insurance coverage:

Make sure you have your own medical insurance coverage. If you and your family were covered under your deceased spouse’s policy at work, inquire about continuing under the group plan through COBRA coverage. (You are eligible to enroll for up to 36 months after your spouse’s death — more than the standard 18-month period.) You will have to pay the premium. Another option may be to convert from existing group coverage to an individual plan. If you had your own policy previously, notify the agent of your spouse’s death so premiums may be reduced. Notify Medicare if covered.

Inform your auto, homeowner’s, liability, long-term care and other appropriate insurance agents. Premiums may be reduced for one less driver. If your spouse had long-term care insurance, you may be eligible for a return of part of his most recent premium payment.

Review assets and liabilities:

Create a list of all you own and what you owe, in a financial net worth statement.

Complete the estate settlement:

Identify the executor and begin taking inventory of the estate.

Consider getting the assistance of an attorney and financial planner.

Change the title and beneficiaries, at the appropriate time, on investments, vehicles, and your safe deposit box. It may not be necessary to change the title on your residence, depending on how it’s titled now. You may want to hold off temporarily on changing names on credit cards so you will continue to have use of the existing cards. (When you are ready to change ownership of a credit card, write a letter to this effect and send this to the company, along with a death certificate.)

Don’t change your joint checking account name for a year or so, as checks may still come payable to your spouse for some time. You’ll be able to deposit these into your joint account.

File an estate tax return if federal or state estate tax is owed (due 9 months after death).
